Some Grocery Stores Install Power Generators

As you'll recall, the 2005 Hurricane Season brought an unprecedented number of hurricanes and tropical storms to Florida. Who can forget not having electricity for days ... weeks ... months? Only 18 of 3,500 traffic light signals were operational. Gas stations had fuel, but no power to pump. Grocery stores experienced food spoilage.

Lessons learned. Two South Florida grocery chains are better prepared for the 2007 Hurricane Season. Publix and Winn Dixie have installed backup generators to serve their customers in the event of a power outage. Below is a list of grocery store locations that have generators for this purpose. The list will be updated and distributed as additional information becomes available during hurricane season.
